

Batch_TP.xls

Code	Name	Description
EXTR	Extraction	Batch consists of samples that were processed together in an operation that involved dissolving the active ingredients of each sample and then removing the solvent to yield an analyzable substance or mixture
SEP	Separation	Batch consists of samples that were processed together in an operation that involved separating each sample into two or more components through physical and/or chemical means
ANLTCL	Analytical	Batch consists of samples that were processed together in an operation that involved determining the nature or amount of one or more components of the samples
OTHER	Other	Batch consists of samples that were processed together in an operation other than those listed above. Read batch comments text for specific information concerning the nature of the batch